

Danger.

Danger all around us
Danger in the air
Damage being done
No one really cares

We animals
Nearly are no more
Some of us killed by gunshot
Even though it's against the law

The pretty jewelry around your neck
Do you know what it contains?
Elephants lose their lives for it
Hardly any ivory remains

When you wear your long fur coat
You should hear the sound
Of the powerful blast of a gunshot
Ripping through a lion's throat

Maybe now you'll realize
The great big size
Of the animals dropping one by one
From the blasts of a single gun.

By Kate.